—The annual faculty recital of the Millersburg Female College took place Friday evening in the college chapel beginning at 7:30. The large auditorium was filled to its utmost capacity. The program was classical and the recital was one of the most brilliant in the history of the institution. The numbers were well selected and each performer gave evidence of the artist. Miss Nannie Louise Best is one of our home girls, having graduated at this institution, both in music and literary department. For the past two years she has been studying music in Berlin, Germany, under some of the most eminent masters, and her work upon the evening in question proved that she had profited largely in that time. She is a skilled pianist, in every particular accomplished. Her teaching is good, she breathes her soul into her work, and as she wends her way through heavy and difficult but harmonious passages or trips lightly through soft flowing melody she carries her hearers with her. Miss Nell as a violinist surpasses any of her predecessors. Her tones are pure and her expression superb. Miss Bradley is a reader is calculated to captivate any audience. Her style is natural, her enunciation is good. Miss Blackmon as vocalist impressed all with her purity of voice. She is one that grows with the hearer the longer you listen to her. Her selections were different and admitted of much range.

—“The Sixth Commandment” at Lexington.

The attraction at the Lexington opera house for three nights and Saturday matinee, commencing Thursday, October 6, will be a remarkable play entitled “The Sixth Commandment” which deals with one of the most vital questions of the day, race suicide. The author, Robert McLaughlin, who was the personal protégé and personal secretary of the late President William McKinley, acknowledges that he received the inspiration for his drama from ex-President Roosevelt, whose utterances on this subject have been quoted all over the world.

The story deals with the substitution of a baby boy from an orphan asylum for a real heir of a wealthy New Yorker who wants a child to perpetuate his name and carry on his work. He had been childless because of the selfishness of his wife. Finally, when she sees that he is so anxious to have an heir, she so schemes that while he is away on a prolonged business trip she adopts this infant and makes him believe that it is their own child. As it is afterwards learned, the child is really the offspring of her own brother and her husband's niece. The real mother of the child falls heirless to a large fortune and the worthless father then offers to right the wrong. She realizes that his motive is to get her money, but decides to marry him for the sake of her child, and the selfish woman, who had adopted the child, loses faith and trust of her husband. The play closes with all terrific denunciation of the selfish childless wife by her embittered husband.

The play is splendidly cast with metropolitan players, and promises to create no end of discussion. It is probably the most daring play ever staged in this country, but at the same time the theme is handled with delicacy. All mail order for seats accompanied by remittance will receive prompt attention.

James E. Clay Sale.

The first day of the sale of personal property of the late James E. Clay, on Friday, was a success from every standpoint.

The sale, which was conducted by Samuel Clay, administrator, was in the hands of Auctioneers Geo. D. Speakes and M. F. Kenney. Thoroughbreds, trotters, mules, jackets, jennets and sheep comprised the offerings.

The sale was attended by one of the largest crowds of prospective purchasers ever seen at a sale in Central Kentucky, buyers being present in large numbers from all over Central Kentucky, besides a quota of horsemen from other States.

Thoroughbred mares, yearlings and mules brought good figures.

The aged brood mare, Marchmont Belle 2:22½, by Baron Wilkes, dam of Clay Belle 2:18½, Edna Earl 2:19½, and Emily Tee 2:28½, went to Arthur Hancock for $130.

Clay Belle, by Bow Bells 2:19½, dam by Baron Wilkes, sold to E. L. Featherstone for $225, and a foal by her side by Wiggins, to the same party for $100.

Register Today.

The annual registration of voters in this city will be held today from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m., and all citizens who are not actually and continuously out of town between those hours or who are not confined at home by illness must register at their precinct voting place or loose thier right to vote in the November election or those of other coming year. In November the Democrats will be called upon to stand by the nominee of the party in the Congressional race and Paris and Bourbon county should give the Democratic candidate the united support of the party in the county. Every Democrat should be sure to register and remind your neighbor. Nothing will have a more depressing effect upon the Republicans than to get out a full registration. Remember the polling places will be open from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Well Improved Farm.

Mr. J. W. Prescott will offer at public sale his farm of 264½ acres on the North Middletown pike on Tuesday, October 4. The farm is well improved and has on it a two story frame dwelling of eight rooms, hall, pantry and porces. The farm is convenient to churches and schools. At the same time a lot of household and kitchen furniture will be offered at public auction.

County Court.

October Court was well attended and one of the largest crowds on record for the month was present. Business in all branches was active. There were about one hundred mule colts on the market which sold from $100 to $115 per head. Few offerings of aged mules. No cattle on the market. At the pens of M. J. Murphy & Co., eight hundred sheep were offered which found ready sales at from $4 to $6 per head. The following sales were reported:

J. H. Rush sold to a Mr. Thomas of Little Rock two mule colts for $100 each. Clark & McClintock bought for $175 one mule from T. J. Hanney; 4 mule colts at $75 each. Sold 22 cattle to Sam Clay at $51 per head, 7 cattle to J. D. Booth at $42 per head. Caywood & Co., eight hundred sheep were offered from Geo. Current for $170, one from Holt Daniels for $157.50. Thomas McClintock bought one mule from Hub Clifford at $150. Sam Pack, of Atlanta, Ga., bought 7 horses at from $150 to $200.

Invitation to Macabees.

The local tent of Macabees is in receipt of an invitation from Mr. J. T. Harper, chairman of the entertainment committee of Lexington Tent No. 20, to be present at an open session to be held by the Lexington tent in that city tonight. A number from the local lodge will attend.

New

Fall Millinery

Now On Display

A beautiful and as carefully selected collection of hats as ever graced our millinery parlors at the beginning of the season.

It is really an exposition of European and American ideas. You will agree with us that these hats vie in beauty and originality with those that come from abroad and which are marked much higher.

Fifth Avenue at its best, cannot eclipse our showing of Fall Millinery.

Quality Considered, Our Prices Are Lower Than Found Elsewhere.
